Malenkov Makes Whistle-Stop Tour Of Northern England

Soviet Head Brims With Friendship

MORECAMBE, England, March 25 (AP)—Georgi Malenkov took a whistle-stop tour through northern England today for his first real closeup of the Western way of life. He seemed to like what he saw.

The former Soviet Premier was brimming over with friendliness. All day long he patted kids on the head, and distributed "peace badges" and boxes of candy as he spoke to Englishmen through an interpreter.

He is on a tour as the Soviet Union's minister of power stations. On the road Malenkov's big Zim car overtook a family car pulling a weekend trailer to the seaside for the summer.

Halt Trailer
The big Zim stopped. Out jumped Malenkov and his bodyguard. They waved the trailer to a stop.

"I wanted to see your house on wheels," Malenkov told the startled car driver, optician Ernest Storey of Manchester.

Mrs. Storey, mother of three, showed Malenkov around the little trailer. Malenkov had some trouble getting his bulk through the door.

"I, too, have three children," he told the Storeys. "I am pleased to see a good English family. I give greetings to your family from my family."

Malenkov and his 14-car caravan moved off to Blackpool, the Coney Island of northern England. On the sea front the big Zim stopped again. Out jumped Malenkov and his bodyguard—this time for Malenkov to pat the head of 3-year-old Richard Davis.

"I have a grandson just your size," said Malenkov. "His name is Peter." From his pocket Malenkov pulled a peace badge and a stick of rock candy and gave them to the boy.

Calla Couple
Further along the seafront Malenkov saw a young couple taking the air. He called them over.

More smiles, more handshakes, more pictures. Soon Malenkov learned the youngsters were married only yesterday and had come to Blackpool for their honeymoon. He sent a bodyguard running to his car to fetch a big box of Russian chocolates.

"Here," said Malenkov, "is a wedding present. I hope you have lots of happiness and lots of children."

Pope Blesses 5,000 Pilgrims

VATICAN CITY, March 25 (AP)—Pope Pius XII blessed more than 5,000 Palm Sunday pilgrims in St. Peter's Square today at the start of Holy Week observances.

Earlier the 80-year-old pontiff had received a gift of palm leaves from Magr. Canisio Van Lierde, a Belgian and the pontiff's vicar from Vatican City.

Lenten Meditation

Rev. David C. Newquist, Shawnee and Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Churches.
EMIL BRUNNER in The Divine Imperative, declares, "If a church produces no living acts of charity for the community as a whole, it is impossible to avoid suspecting that she is sick unto death." Most will agree with this observation. May I be so bold as to suggest that unless that which Christ achieved for us by His death and His resurrection is translated into every day acts of goodness, mercy and love, we, as individuals, are also sick unto death. Remember the words of Christ, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven."

I am certain that some have made good resolutions and have acted on the same during this pre Easter season. Some have reached into the deeper meaning of Lent, and recognized that because of the suffering and death of God's Son, a compulsion to faithfulness and goodness is laid upon us. To those I say, may you continue growing in these virtues, strengthened by the power of the resurrected Christ.

I speak now rather to the one, who may have resolutely fasted Lent with tightly set lips and a strong determination to get a job done and then to be oneself again, to

Rumblings Of Red Revolt Heard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, March 25 (AP)—Rumblings of doubt and revolt inside the Communist parties of Britain, East Germany, Italy and Austria were plainly heard today as a result of the Kremlin's recasting the dead Stalin from a role of hero to villain.

The actual charges of the new "collective leadership" in the Kremlin against the late dictator have not been published, but reports leaking through the Iron Curtain say he is being accused of being a rabid murderer and bungler.

Negro Leaders Promise 'No Surrender'

By Rex Thomas

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 25 (AP)—The birthplace of the confederacy has become the battleground for what Negro leaders term a "no surrender" fight for racial "justice and equality."

From the initial attack on segregated city bus facilities, Negro leaders have promised to launch another offensive directed at voter registration policies.

A committee of the Montgomery Improvement Assn., organized to support the 18-week-old bus boycott, is already working on plans to strengthen the rolls of Negro voters, or find out why it cannot be done.

The bus protest meanwhile is still functioning with renewed determination despite the prosecution of its leaders and the conviction of the first 90 defendants called to trial, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Huge Crowd
King told a huge crowd of Negroes jammed into a church at a mass meeting several hours after his conviction and $500 fine last Thursday that "we are no longer content to accept second class citizenship. We are determined to struggle for justice and equality until we achieve it."

King meanwhile has appealed to higher courts.

As president of the Improvement Assn., formed the day the bus boycott began Dec. 5, King testified during his trial that the organization's purpose is to "improve the Negro's status in Montgomery."

Although its efforts thus far have been devoted mostly to the bus protest, the 27-year-old Baptist minister disclosed later the group has a voter registration committee at work.

Its chairman is Rufus Lewis, president of the Citizens Club, an organization whose membership is restricted to Negro voters.

Complaining that members of his race have been "systematically excluded" from voting in Montgomery, Lewis predicted that his committee's efforts will lead ultimately to a court suit.

Ike Heads For 'Operation Friendship'

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower heads tonight for the plush resort area of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., for "Operation Friendship," a two-day meeting starting tomorrow with the President of Mexico and the Prime Minister of Canada.

Eisenhower's special train was scheduled to arrive at 7:30 a.m. tomorrow at the conference site—the swank Greenbrier Hotel nestled in an Allegheny Mountain forest. There the President will be joined by Secretary of State Dulles and other U.S. diplomatic officials.

President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines of Mexico and Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada are expected on the scene late tomorrow afternoon. They will fly from their respective capitals to Charleston, W.Va., and then be ferried in smaller planes to White Sulphur Springs.

Private Plane
Cortines will travel from Mexico City to Charleston in Eisenhower's four-engine private plane, Columbine III.

The three-power talks, to conclude Tuesday evening, are unusual in the sense that no agenda has been prepared and no international problems of any consequence confront the leaders.

The final communique quite likely will stress North American solidarity in these times of free world effort to stem the spread of Communist domination.

This will be the first time these three heads of government have met together, but Eisenhower is no stranger to either Cortines or St. Laurent.

He met Cortines on the U.S.-Mexican border at the dedication of Falcon Dam in October 1953. That same year he conferred with St. Laurent as the guest of the Canadian government at Ottawa.

The White House February announcement of plans for the current conference said the meetings would give the three leaders a chance to discuss matters of mutual interest and get better acquainted.

Eisenhower probably will have time, weather permitting, to try out one of the Greenbrier's three golf courses tomorrow before the arrival of his guests.

Stassen Said To Be Drafting New Proposals

LONDON, March 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower's personal disarmament advisor was reported today to be drafting several more proposals to the new men in the Kremlin.

Harold E. Stassen, chief U.S. delegate at five-power United Nations Disarmament subcommittee talks, declined to disclose his plans.

Western diplomats, however, said Stassen seemed to be laying the groundwork for a showdown with the Russians on whether they are willing to cut the arms race after 10 years of fencing.

The subcommittee meetings will be resumed tomorrow.

Asks Questions
For a week the Soviet delegate, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, has carefully examined the platful of proposals already suggested by the West. He has only asked questions, leaving the clear implication that the final decision must come from Moscow.

The Russians indicated before the talks opened that they hoped to capitalize on reported differences in the camp of the four Western Powers on the five-man subcommittee.

Stassen's proposal that both the United States and the Soviet Union cut their armed forces to 2½ million men posed what Americans regarded as the "first practical step" toward a general disarmament.

The British and French, with their own long-range plan, gave what one observer described as a "generally favorable" reaction. Gromyko listened poker-faced.

Fishing License Cost May Increase

HARRISBURG, March 25 (AP)—An official of the State Fish Commission indicated that another hike in fishing license fees may be needed to increase the revenue of the agency.

William Voight Jr., executive director of the commission, hinted in an address to the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs yesterday that the higher fees may soon be required to offset salary increases.

Bombing, Shot Shatter Quiet On Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 25 (AP)—A bombing and a single shot today shattered the quiet of a rigid British curfew clamped on Cyprus to prevent violence on Greece's Independence Day.

A Greek woman was injured slightly by a bomb thrown at a military patrol in the port of Paphos, 60 miles southwest of Nicosia. The curfew will be lifted at 4 a.m. tomorrow in the rest of Cyprus, but will continue at Paphos because of a series of similar incidents.

The single shot was fired in Nicosia's Mektasas Square. The bullet pierced the steel shutter of The Nicosia Palace Hotel bar but injured no one. Hundreds of troops and police streamed into the area looking for the curfew violator.

Held In Homes
Most of Cyprus was a vast no-man's land. More than 100,000 Cypriots, Greek and Turk alike, were held in their homes in 15 main towns by the curfew ordered by Field Marshal Sir John Harding, the British governor.

Harding ordered the curfew, which began at 4 a.m. He said he had been advised some Greek Cypriots intended to use the Greek Independence Day as a cover for renewed violence. Greece won its independence from Turkey 135 years ago.

Catasauqua Man Crashes Bridge Barrier

BUSHKILL—A 45-year-old Lehigh County truck driver was killed here early yesterday morning when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his tractor-trailer which plunged through a barrier and down into Bushkill Creek.

Milford State Police identified the victim as Andrew J. Churetta, 1016 Railroad St., Catasauqua, who died a short time after the mishap.

Churetta was driving west on Route 209 about 1:45 a.m. when he came to a barrier at a washed out bridge over Bushkill Creek, troopers said. Instead of following the detour, the tanker crashed through the barricade.

State Police said most of the cab was submerged and investigators found Churetta's body partially covered by water on their arrival.

Reports
Troopers said Churetta reportedly had delivered a quantity of gasoline to Milford from Allentown and was returning there when the accident occurred. Investigators theorized that he fell asleep after they learned he had traveled over the road numerous times.

Dr. Jack Bullock, Pike County coroner, was quoted by police as saying Churetta suffered shock, possible internal injuries and a concussion.

The trailer was owned by the Coastal Tank Lines, according to investigating Troopers John McCarthy and James Colbert.

Cold Weather Strikes South

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ice box weather held fast along the Atlantic Coast Sunday extending as far south as the Carolina-Georgia peach belt.

The big freeze of March 20-21 already had heavily damaged most orchards. Sunday's frost further hurt the crop and even worse was expected as the weather bureau said the cold would continue.

Morning Low
An early morning low of 25 degrees was recorded at Anderson, S.C., and Raleigh, N.C. Temperatures dropped to 26 at Athens, Ga., 27 at Winston-Salem, N.C., and 29 at Greenville and Columbia, S.C.

Farther north temperatures in the 30s prevented any appreciable melting of Saturday's snow which fell on top of much of the mammoth fall of the previous weekend.

West of the Appalachians the country enjoyed a warming trend. Readings were in the 70s in western sections of the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Yellow Gowns For Maids

DALLAS, March 25 (AP)—Simple and identical gowns of sunlight yellow silk organdie over taffeta will be worn by the eight bridesmaids at the wedding of movie star Grace Kelly and Prince Ranier of Monaco, it was announced today.

The gowns designed by Neiman-Marcus, Dallas specialty store, have full and fluid wide skirts and belted sleeves caught to a tiny cuff below the elbow.

Covered Buttons
Tiny covered buttons extend from a simple, small collar to a high obi sash that ties in the back with three small separate bows. Flowing streamers from the bows lend motion and back interest to the gowns.

The pale yellow of the dresses is repeated in the corolla hats of misty hairbraided in petal-like layers with a small butterfly bow hovering at the back.

House Aiming For July Adjournment

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—House leaders are quietly aiming for an early July adjournment of Congress with legislative action to be limited to carefully screened essentials.

With a national election coming up, leaders are eager to avoid unnecessary legislative controversies that could delay adjournment until uncomfortably close to the political nominating conventions which start Aug. 13.

The Senate leadership has not yet gone on record for a quitting date, but there is usually an understanding between the two chambers.

Expectation
Speaker Rayburn of Texas said today he expected the House would be ready to adjourn July 1, a date considerably in advance of recent years.

Republican House Leader Martin of Massachusetts was somewhat less optimistic, but said he thought July 13 was "a good reasonable date."

A number of controversies are brewing, which could hold Congress in Washington right up to the start of the political nominating conventions—as happened in 1952.

These include foreign aid, farm legislation and possibly the administration's highway construction bill.

Prospects of congressional action on school construction aid have fallen sharply. Speaker Rayburn has ordered further action held up indefinitely to permit a "cooling off" of the argument over inclusion of a racial integration amendment in the school aid bill.

The legislative tempo is due for a sharp pickup when Congress gets back from an Easter recess which starts at the end of this week and continues until April 9.

Quiet Rules In Tunisia

TUNIS, Tunisia, March 25 (AP)—Tunisia today held its first legislative elections since receiving a pledge of independence from France. Officials said complete calm prevailed.

National Front grouping, including Habib Bourguiba's powerful Neo-Destour Independence party, apparently was the easy winner. It expected to sweep all 98 seats in the new Tunisian National Assembly.

Shortly before midnight the Interior Ministry said National Front candidates won 118,198 out of 120,232 votes counted so far. The Communists received 1,693 votes.

Jam Polls
Between 70 and 90 per cent of Tunisia's 750,000 eligible voters, all males, jammed polling places.

The heavy turnout was a defeat for Salah ben Youssef, who heads an extremist wing of the Neo-Destour. Ben Youssef, who for months has demanded the French pull out of Tunisia completely, appealed to Tunisians to boycott the polls.

Chandler May Be Late Entry Into Wide Open Battle For Democratic Party Nomination

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Sen. Ellender (D-La.) said today he welcomes reports that Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky may be a late entrant in the Democratic presidential nomination contest.

"I like to see new blood come into the picture," Ellender said. "The Minnesota primary should be an invitation for a number of entrants." He added:

"Happy is a mighty fine fellow and he certainly would be more acceptable to most Southern Democrats than either Kefauver or Harriman."

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee now is regarded as the front-running aspirant for the Democratic nomination since his win over Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee and former governor of Illinois, in the Minnesota primary last week.

"Available"
That upset also has boomed the political stock of Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, who told reporters in West Palm Beach, Fla. last night that he is "available" for the nomination.

Harriman, who has been listed as "not an active candidate," repeated that he would not accept the vice presidential nomination.

Ellender, more outspoken than many Southern Democrats, said the civil rights views of both Harriman and Kefauver are unacceptable to the South.

"I feel confident that the national convention will not go for either Kefauver or Harriman," Ellender told a reporter. "If it did there would be so much dissatisfaction in the South that a powerful third party move could develop."

Ellender and many other present senators served with Chandler when he was in the Senate from 1939 until Nov. 1, 1945. He resigned then to become high commissioner of organized baseball.

Last year Chandler made a political comeback to win election as governor of Kentucky, a post he had held before entering the Senate.

Owlett Suffers Heart Illness

PHILADELPHIA, March 25 (AP)—G. Mason Owlett, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Assn. and the state's national Republican committeeman, has been hospitalized with a "mild coronary" but his doctor said his condition is satisfactory, it was disclosed today.

Owlett, who returned last Thursday from a South American cruise with his wife, complained of pains in his chest after checking into his Bellevue Stratford Hotel apartment here and decided to undergo a checkup at University Hospital.

Two East Stroudsburg Treasure Hunters Find Parking Meter Instead Of Captain Kidd's Pile

TWO EAST Stroudsburg boys were looking for buried treasure yesterday . . . and came up with a parking meter.

It happened like this: David Dailey, 10 and Ronnie Smith, 9, decided to hunt up a little hidden treasure. Hunking back to the days of Long John Silver and The Jolly Roger, David and Ronnie headed for a pile of ashes around the old Pocono Hosiery Mill on Prospect St.

They started to dig. Several spadeful of dirt failed to turn up anything more than a nail or two, a rusty screw and a lot of mud. Then a spade hit a piece of metal.

The two boys scraped and dug. They came up with a parking meter. The boys took the meter home to David's father, Chauncey Dailey. Dailey cleaned it off, called borough police chief Travis Seese.

The meter was about three-fourths full of money, Dailey said. It had apparently been missing since last November 22 from a spot in front of the Fenner building on Crystal St., East Stroudsburg.

Michigan's Governor On Available List

Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles by AP's political reporters who are surveying the situation in the light of President Eisenhower's decision to seek a second term.

MICHIGAN
By Jack Bell

DETROIT, March 25 (AP)— Amid preparations to bid for a fifth term as governor, G. Mennen Williams has run up rods to catch the lightning if a storm breaks over the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Michigan governor is wisely available for first place on the ticket. He probably wouldn't turn down an invitation to run for vice president.

He has pocketed Michigan's 44 convention nominating votes while he eyes the primary battles between Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Williams' presidential antennae picked up quickly the reaction to Stevenson's prestige-tarnishing experience in the Minnesota primary.

Door Open

To the Michigan governor and his friends the results indicate the door has been opened wider to favorable son candidates, since they apparently do not believe that Kefauver is likely to wind up as the party's top nominee.

Any further serious loss of prestige by Stevenson in the Florida and California primaries would be almost certain to result in a decision by Williams to take the wraps off friends in other states. They have been advised thus far not to try for delegates for him outside Michigan.

The thought would be that even if Williams couldn't win the top prize, he would be in line for second place if Kefauver proved more successful than he was in 1952.

National Committeeman Ernest J. Lacey says there will be a Williams boom at the August Chicago convention.

"If anything catches on fire there this time, it won't be the auditorium, it will be Williams," Lacey declared.

Williams himself is not so optimistic at this point. He indicated clearly he thinks only some relatively unexpected developments would bring him into the picture.

"Not A Candidate"

"I say, and I mean it, that I'm not a candidate for the presidency at this time, but if the party calls I would accept," he said.

He disclosed, however, that he has staff aides working to draft a Williams platform on national issues which he probably will make public before the convention. He said he felt called upon to develop such a "positive" program because of his own criticism of Stevenson's "moderation" philosophy.

"I feel it is that natural heritage of the Democratic party to be liberal, progressive and forward looking," Williams said. "Democrats have won when they have had a bold, progressive program. We can win again on that kind of a platform and we must have it."

Williams' national ambitions necessarily must take second place to his obvious intent to run again for governor. He won a third two-year term in 1952 by a margin of only 8,618 votes while Eisenhower was carrying Michigan by 320,000 out of nearly 2,800,000 ballots.

He won a fourth term in 1954 by a margin of 253,000 votes.

Although he hasn't announced officially for re-election, Williams is likely to go to the national convention as the state's Democratic nominee for governor. That may pose a problem for any national nomination since Michigan law specifies that a nominee for governor may be withdrawn only by death or transfer of residence to another state.

Williams' friends obviously believe Stevenson retains major strength among rank and file Michigan Democrats. Kefauver has been in the state frequently and Lacey said the Tennessee senator has many friends, particularly among union men.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York draws almost no mention here.

The group stayed overnight at the YMCA (Sisane House).

Fire Destroys Four-Room Summer Home In Appenzell

High Winds Hinder Jackson Fire Fighters

APPENZELL—Flames, whipped by wild March winds, swept through an isolated four-room frame summer home near here Saturday afternoon. The house was completely destroyed.

Jackson Township Volunteer Fire Company was called to the scene. Carl Price, company secretary, said the home belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Trenholm of New York City. The house was located about a mile and a quarter south of Appenzell. The address is Stroudsburg RD 3.

Origin of the fire had not been determined last night. Price said that Mrs. Trenholm was attempting to clear a path from the main highway to the house—a distance of about 500 feet—when she noticed fire coming from the frame dwelling.

Breaks Window

The fire company secretary said the woman ran to the house, broke a window in an effort to get to a telephone inside. The blaze within was so intense that she could not enter the building. Price said the woman told firemen.

Mrs. Trenholm then ran to a neighbor's home but the phone there was out of order. Price said. The woman had to walk and run to the Appenzell store to turn in an alarm, the fire company officer reported.

Firemen got to the scene a few minutes later. It was impossible to get trucks up to the home, however. The house had no driveway. It had been built back in a wooded area off the main highway.

The volunteers carried portable pumps from the trucks up to the house. Using water from the Appenzell creek nearby, firemen managed to save a small frame shop building and garage which adjoined the summer home. But they were too late to save the house.

Equipment

The smaller building was used to house equipment and personal property stored at the summer place, Price said. Firemen said severe, high winds fanned the flames through the frame house and totally destroyed it. Heavy snow on the ground was credited with stopping the spread of the fire to surrounding buildings and woods.

The Trenholms lost all the personal belongings they had stored in the house, firemen said. The modern home was insured. No estimate has yet been placed on loss.

The couple lives in New York City where Trenholm is employed by a newspaper. They spend weekends at the summer home. During recent months, a friend of the family said, the couple had spent about four weeks at the Appenzell place.

Ott, Sr., Vocational Agriculture instructor and advisor of the Future Farmers of America chapter at the Bangor Area Joint High School, was presented the Bangor Exchange Club's annual "Golden Deeds Award" at a banquet in his honor held at the Blue Valley Farm Show Auditorium near here on Saturday night.

The award was the third such award presented by the Exchange Club. Previous winners were George I. Godshalk and Mrs. Philena Rose.

Ott, Sr., a place in our book of Golden Deeds because as pioneer Bangor area teacher of Future Farmers, he vigorously sowed the seeds of nature's wisdom; as faithful Sunday school teacher of young Christians, he carefully nurtured rich crops of dedicated adults; as son, husband, father exemplifying of family traditions, he bestowed love, care, attention in measure overflowing; and not just teacher, but as student ever of God and world, he has harvested wisdom, two proud careers, and our respect."

Ott, as recipient of the award, was presented by Samuel Hicks, toastmaster for the occasion.

Among those who lauded the accomplishments of Ott as teacher, community worker, and churchman were guests Clarence Reichard, State Exchange president of Allentown; George J. Desh, District Governor of National Exchange; Donald B. Keat, superintendent of schools of the Bangor Area Joint School District and Dr. V. A. Martin, State advisor of the Department of Agricultural Education of Harrisburg.

Reagle, former pastor of the Christ Evangelical Reformed Church of Stone Church; and the Rev. Stewart Bortner, present pastor of the same church.

Remarks were also offered by William Brown, president of the Bangor Exchange, Arnold Wynne, and Markley Reichard, both past-presidents.

More than 300 people—friends and neighbors—paid homage to Ott with their presence at the roast beef supper and program in his honor.

A native of Stone Church, Ott has spent all his life farming his homestead near here. He is a graduate of Belvidere, N.J., High School and Penn State College. He has been a teacher in Bangor Area Joint High School for 29 years, teaching history, science and geography before instituting the vocational agriculture program in 1936. He has been its only instructor and advisor of the FFA for the past 20 years.

A member of the Christ Evangelical Reformed Church in Stone Church, he has been a church school teacher for more than 30 years and presently serves as church treasurer.

He has one son, George O. Ott, Jr., who is engaged with him in farming and a brother, Emory, of Reading, Pa., both of whom were in attendance at the affair with their wives.

Ott's agricultural students have won many local, state and national recognition. One was awarded the National Star Regional Farmer award, five were honored as American Farmers, another national award; and 40 have been honored as Keystone Farmers, a state award.

Fishermen Purchase 175 Licenses

SOME 175 Pennsylvania residents have thus far bought their 1956 fishing licenses at the office of Monroe County Treasurer Frank Weller.

This is a trifle behind last year's sales, Weller said, since 244 resident permits were sold at his office by the end of last March.

The county treasurer is only one of several agents selling the fishing permits in this county.

Prices

Weller noted that non-resident licenses cost $5.60 for the season, or $2.60 for the special five-day permit. In addition, New Jersey fishermen must buy a special $5 license if they wish to fish for trout. This means that New Jersey residents will pay a total $10.60 for the trout stamp and the regular non-resident license.

Meanwhile, anglers have been reminded by the State Fish Commission that the March 14 to April 15 ban on fishing in the Commonwealth will apply only to ponds, lakes and sections of streams and rivers that have been stocked with trout during the past year or scheduled for such stocking prior to April 15.

Holy Week Commemorates Most Tragic, Most Glorious Events In Christian Era

The Solemn observance of Holy Week began yesterday throughout the Christian world as Protestants and Catholics alike celebrated Palm Sunday, a day that marks the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem nearly 2,000 years ago.

Holy Week Commemorates the most tragic, yet the most glorious, events in Christian history. For the early Christians, Holy Week ran the gamut from the highest hopes to the darkest despair.

In that week His disciples listened to some of the most significant and comforting discourses of their Lord. They sat with Him at the Last Supper. They submitted to His symbolic washing of their feet. A selected few accompanied Him into the Garden of Gethsemane and slept while He experienced agony.

They scattered when He was arrested, hid while He was crowned with thorns and scourged. They watched fearfully through the mockery of His trial and the tragedy of His Crucifixion. They saw His body laid tenderly in the tomb.

Their high hopes in His Messiahship seemed to dissolve into thin air. But it was the darkness before the dawning.

The glory of the Christian story is that Holy Week is always followed by Easter.

Ann St. Traffic Dispute Appears Headed For Showdown In Court

Stroudsburg Council and Burgess Hal H. Harris once again find themselves on opposite sides of the fence in respect to correct procedures for operating the borough.

The current controversy centers around the diversion of heavy trucks from S. Seventh and Main Sts., which are state highways, to Ann St., which is borough maintained.

Burgess Harris has ordered trucks and buses to use Ann St. in an effort to relieve traffic jams on Main St., between Fifth and Ninth, the central business district.

George T. Robinson, borough solicitor, has ruled that it is illegal to divert traffic from a state highway without permission of the Highway Department, unless a temporary emergency arises.

Borough Council is basing its opposition to the Harris order on this ruling, along with the fact that the damage which heavy traffic inflicts on the pavement will necessitate repair of the street at considerable expense to the borough.

Joining the borough in attempting to override the mayor are the county truckers' association and those persons living along the affected street.

Nearly one hundred Ann St. residents signed a petition to council protesting Harris' order. They charged the constant rumbling of heavy trucks over the pock-marked street sets up a vibration that causes building walls to crack and also that the noise disturbs their sleep.

John R. Lesoine, a trucking firm operator, contends Ann St. does not have the proper base to carry commercial traffic. He also declared that a check with State Highway Department authorities shows the borough has not received authority to send Routes 611 and 209 traffic over Ann St.

District Engineer Edwin C. Greenwald, in confirming this statement told The Daily Record that the traffic diversion was purely a borough move and was not done because of any request from the state.

The hassle now appears headed for a showdown with the arrest of four truck drivers for refusing to heed a policeman's order to use Ann St. The drivers acted on orders from the trucking company owners, William Tarr and Claude S. Cyphers, who insisted that Ann St. "isn't fit for any vehicle to run over."

Such is the situation as it now stands. There are strong indications that the issue will be left to the courts to decide.

Even though this newspaper commends Burgess Harris for his efforts to ease the traffic congestion on Main St., it feels he is acting beyond his delegated powers.

His refusal to state any reasons to reporters beclouds his position, but it appears he has decreed—in his own mind, at least—that a "permanent emergency" exists and is basing his case of this one point.

Whether Burgess Harris can make his position stick in court, if he allows the dispute to go that far, is something that will be watched with great interest locally. A sufficiently large number of people are involved to make it desirable that the issues be properly aired in court and a clear-cut decision handed down at an early date.

New Soviet Party Line Urges Reds To Dine Out

The "dine out" ultimatum given Russians by Comrade Khrushchev, boss of the Communist Party, has had me on pins and needles.

"We must pay serious attention to improving service in dining rooms, restaurants and snack bars," said he, during the 20th Congress of the Party recently. "We must cut overheads (heads?), improve the quality of dishes and lower their price. We must go over more energetically to the cafeteria or self-service system."

"In a word," he concluded, "we must put public catering on such a footing that the mass of the people will find it more advantageous to patronize dining rooms and snack bars than to buy food and cook it at home."

This disconcerting word from the Soviet, innocent though it sounds, strikes me as a very tricky piece of propaganda aimed at the women of Russia. Read between Mr. Khrushchev's lines and what do you find? "Look at America's capitalistic kitchens full of shiny gadgets. Somebody has to run them, polish them, pay for them. Aren't we lucky to live in Russia, girls? Where our ladies look like ice boxes, instead of look at them? Our sturdy Soviet women coming home at night, tired from their honest toil in sewers, fields and factories, need not bother their pretty—that is, sturdy—heads about what's cooking."

"They know that, already. Nothing much. Certainly Papa is not to be found bustling the Stroganoff, as American men frequently do. No dedicated Communist head of the family, would be caught dead running off a batch of pies—up to his elbows in flour, and a tall white cook's cap atop his head. That's women's work, and just another sign of decadent free enterprise."

"But, women of Russia, we plan to change even that. No longer must you pause in your daily toil of carrying trunks, ploughing and shoveling, to fret—'What in heck will I give 'em for supper?' Leave such nonsense to American housewives who have nothing to think of except are biscuits better made with buttermilk? Do I dare put a pinch of oregano in the stew?"

"Henceforth you lucky girls can take the whole family out to eat!" Nyet, Comrade, nyet! You may run that one by in Russia but it wouldn't fool us a bit. The thought of taking a houseful of young children out to sup in a cafeteria would cause the stoutest heart to quail. Which brings up another question—maybe the flying saucer mystery is not so mysterious, after all. Not if Russian kids are anything like their capitalistic cousins when drawing a bead on a dining room target.

Gobel also had solace for the color-blind. "Our show is not in color," he advises them. "They said it wasn't important enough for color. In fact, we had to put up quite a struggle to get black-and-white."

Eisenhower-Kefauver Race Looms In Wisconsin Primary

Washington, March 26—Wisconsin's primary next Tuesday is shaping up into a potentially significant contest between President Eisenhower and Senator Estes Kefauver.

That's the announcement of hope of the Tennessee and his exuberant leaders.

Normally, this primary should be routine and unimportant as neither the President nor Kefauver is opposed. Both the Republican and Democratic outcomes are foregone conclusions, and of no special consequence in themselves.

Kefauver wants to make them eventual. He is quietly exerting every effort to transform these uncontested party votes into a trial of strength with the President.

This is to be accomplished by piling up a bigger ballot than the President, and thus providing a basis for claiming he was outrun by Kefauver in this major Midwest farm state.

Republican chiefs are aware of this backstage strategy and are countering it.

Two crack campaign experts were rushed to Wisconsin last week by National Chairman Leonard Hall, and others are on the way. The entire state GOP organization is being mobilized to bring out a maximum party vote for the President. Balloting in the primary is being made a matter of loyalty and devotion to him. This plea is being used particularly with women and independents.

The outcome of Kefauver's plan depends largely on the attitude of opposing Democratic elements.

The Hitch—If supporters of Adlai Stevenson, Governor Harrison and other possible Kefauver rivals cooperate, he has a chance of making an impressive showing in Wisconsin's April 3 primary. But if they don't, then he won't.

The Tennessee's managers are strenuously endeavoring to win general party support. Representative Wayne Hays (D., O.) has propositioned National Chairman Paul Butler for $25,000 to finance a whirlwind broadcasting and advertising "get out the vote" drive.

The argument is being made this should be done in the "interest of the common good of the party."

"We are not asking you to boost Kefauver," Butler is being told. "He's doing his own campaigning. What we're urging is an attack on Eisenhower and the record of his Administration, particularly what's happened to farmers. Tell them this is their chance to express disapproval of the Republicans. Every dollar the National Committee spends for this now will be worth $100 in the election campaign next fall."

So far there has been no rush by non-Kefauverites to "buy" his ambitious scheme.

There are two reasons for this coolness: (1) The Tennessee has too much to gain from a smashing Wisconsin primary vote, and (2) his tactics in the recent Minnesota primary did not improve his unpopularity among his Senate colleagues and inner party leaders.

This significant private dislike is long-standing, and what happened in Minnesota is being held as one more score against Kefauver.

In the wind-up week of his electioneering there, he hung the label machine boss on Senator Hubert Humphrey and Governor Orville Freeman, who led the Stevenson forces. While berating them throughout the state, Kefauver also loudly proclaimed his love of the farmers and advocacy of 100 percent fixed price supports.

Meanwhile, Humphrey was leading the bi-partisan battle in the Senate against the Administration's farm bill, which Kefauver was so strenuously denouncing in Minnesota.

For three weeks, Humphrey was constantly in the thick of the Senate fray, frequently 10 and 12 hours a day. He lost some fights by one vote, because of Kefauver's absence. The Tennessee was busily electioneering a thousand miles away when Humphrey, by a wily maneuver, wrote an amendment into the farm measure that cut much of the ground from under the Administration's previous narrow victory for flexible price supports.

The New York Times said of this feat:

"Senator Hubert Humphrey almost single-handedly turned the tide running in favor of the Republican Administration to give his party potent ammunition for the coming election campaign. . . He formulated the Democratic line, and revived the sagging spirits of his colleagues. . . He had planned to return to Minnesota to help Stevenson in the closing days of the primary. By staying in Washington throughout the farm battle, Humphrey laid his prestige on the line in Minnesota."

While he was making this Senate fight, Kefauver was branding Humphrey as a political boss who was trying to deprive him of a fair shake in Minnesota.

That is why on the evening before the primary, as the Senate was completing action on the farm legislation, Democratic senators made no bones of their resentment at Kefauver's conduct. That was nothing new for most of them. But some evinced indignation who hadn't done so before.

Kefauver won a resounding political victory on the Minnesota hustings, but he lost new ground in the Senate—that may count painfully against him in the Chicago convention next August.

That's where he lost in 1952, and it could happen again!

Cagers Enjoy Tom's Annual Presentation

By Jim Riley

Tom Waring did it again. Yes, the Shawnee songster turned up with another outstanding party for the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College basketball squad. Not only the varsity, but the junior varsity as well.

Coaches and other invited guests joined in the festivities that ranged from the most delicious food possible to prepare to some of Tom's own songs, played and sung like only the likeable sports enthusiast is capable.

Every member of the squad present dug in heartily and enjoyed himself to the fullest. Food was attacked again and again and mile ran freely.

Why did Tom Waring give this party for the basketball team for a second straight year? The answer is simple. He wanted to. He wanted to in some measure pay for the many hours of enjoyment that the basketball squad had given him down through the months.

Tom's that kind of fellow. A real guy, with a heart of gold and a disposition that we all could very well copy. He tries to fool you with a rough exterior, but inside he is ruled by kindness and consideration.

He has adopted many of the students up on Normal Hill, many in addition to the basketball squad, and he is always doing a little something extra to help them along the rocky road to education.

Tom first began to hold his "basketball team parties" at the close of the 1954-1955 campaign. The venture was so successful that Waring decided to stage a repeat performance.

Naturally the court Warriors went along strongly with the idea and began looking forward to the affair midway in the campaign that came to close only two short weeks ago.

Laughter was the main course at last Thursday's affair, with good natured kidding mixing to the proper degree with the delicious food.

Tom Waring won the most recent "Golden Deeds" Award presented by the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club. A better and more suitable choice couldn't have been made.

If you don't believe men, just ask the students at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, where "Mr. Helping Hand" is most famous. In addition, the Varsity "E" Club will offer testimony. This club will never forget Tom and his great work. Neither will I.

George Sokolsky Says . . . Extermination Of 20,000,000 Ukrainians Drew No Khrushchev, Malenkov Protests

The patient is dead. In the autopsy they found a sponge inside him. The fault was not the surgeon's; it was blamed on the nurse who did not count the sponges carefully. Now that we know why the patient died and who is responsible, will that bring him back to life?

Khrushchev's apology for 20,000,000 or some such figure who were starved to death in his native Ukraine does not help those who starved to death. They are dead and while they were being exterminated there is no record of Khrushchev or Malenkov having said one word of protest. In fact, Khrushchev was the hatchet man, True, had they protested, they might have been killed but history tells of many noble figures who stood before the cannons of tyranny and shouted, "Give me liberty or give me death."

If Khrushchev wanted to be convincing that this is a changed world and that better days have come, why does he not free the millions of so-called political prisoners, many of them of the middle and intellectual classes of the satellite countries who have been taken from their homes and families, deprived of their careers, buried in vast prison camps where they are engaged in slave labor? True, most of them were picked up by order of Beria, who acted for Stalin, whose object was to destroy any kind of independent leadership among the satellites. Many—in fact, most—of these prisoners were not charged, were never tried. They were simply picked up and moved to change the population pattern of an area.

Beria is dead. Anyone can kick his name around. It has no meaning. Khrushchev and his colleagues on the Presidium are alive. They have tremendous powers, absolute powers. They can release these poor souls from camps that are as wicked, if not worse, than any that Hitler's crew of madmen conceived. As long as these innocent men and women remain in these camps, Khrushchev's tears (four times he wept during his speech) make no impression. He can free those whose only crime has been that they were born in good families. And if the plan is to impress the British with Khrushchev's virtues, it can only be hoped that there will be those in Britain who will ask about these prisoners.

Let us not be confused by all this change of heart. Malenkov, for instance, was Stalin's secretary. He was the man who carried out Stalin's orders. He was named by Stalin as his heir. While Stalin lived, he was a man of extraordinary powers. He, as a member of the Presidium, is still a man of extraordinary powers. Are we to be told that the same man who carried out the madman's orders did not know that the madman was mad? What is Malenkov's excuse for carrying out Stalin's sadistic orders? He could have refused. He could have committed suicide. What is his moral basis for living, he who transmitted the orders to murder and kill?

And so, we are to turn a page. For nearly 30 years, the entire human race has witnessed and suffered from the schemes and tricks and obscenities of a madman entrenched in power. Against the evils he created, every nation has had to establish costly protections and defenses. Now, we are simply to turn a page in the book of history and say, it is all over because Khrushchev and Malenkov say that it is all over. But neither of them has taken a single step to reestablish law and justice in his own country or assure the world that the onward march of the empire has been halted and that nations can live in peace. All the talk about the Geneva Spirit has been accompanied by a blatant anti-Americanism encouraged by Nehru and his Babu, Krishna Menon.

As Khrushchev and Bulganin cursed and condemned the British a month ago, so they now fawn on the British. What kind of people are these who curse one day and lickspittle the next? Realists, some call them. Men without character, opportunists, triflers with other people's lives, would be a better description. Those who believe that a change has come over Russia need to present better proof than Khrushchev's speech denouncing Stalin. What is needed is a record of deeds, not long speeches interlarded with tears. Not one deed of friendship or decency is on the record.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

By H. I. Phillips

The Crisis And The Poets Inasmuch as Malenkov set the pace by quoting Bobby Burns in London, we anticipate the following cables upon the arrival of Khrushchev and Bulganin: London.—Premier Khrushchev and Marshal Bulganin arrived here today, exhibiting the new intercontinental grin and the ballistic poetic quotation. Mr. Khrushchev was hardly on the ground before he professed his alliance with Lord Tennyson:

I come from haunt of coot and fern, I come from haunt of coot and fern, I come from haunt of coot and fern, I come from haunt of coot and fern.

To bicker down a valley— "How are Coot and Fern?" asked Anthony Eden, ever the diplomat. "Ah, good old Petyro Coot and Sergei Fern!" exclaimed Khrushchev as he went into:

It is the miller's daughter, And she is grown so dear That I would be the jewel That trembles at her ear.

"What's the next two lines of that?" he asked Bulganin, who replied dramatically:

And the man who found me first Was our good old grinnin', gruntin' Gunga Din. This dangerous tossing of Kipling into a critical situation chilled the welcome, but Khrushchev quickly said: "We are happy to be in England, now that spring is here. As Swinburne said of spring, 'Kissing her hair, I sat around her feet; wove and unwound it; wound and found it sweet.'" His memory for the next few lines failed him and Bulganin said loudly, "Just then a scout came flying, white with haste and fear: 'To arms! To arms! Sir Consul, Lars Porsena is here!'"

By tossing in Macaulay with Swinburne it was clear that the Russians could not avoid creating conflicts and troublesome situations. But the British, used to suffering, tried to be patient! "Are you familiar with Thomas Hood?" asked Mr. Attlee. "It is barely charged we know all the hoods," replied Khrushchev, still smiling.

On Broadway —by Walter Winchell

The Broadway Lights

Curtain Time: "Mr. Wonderful," the musical starring Mr. Talent, arrived at the B'way . . . Sammy Davis, Jr., an all-around entertainer, impressed Mr. and Mrs. First Nighter (and some reviewers) with his vocal u r e , hoofing, mimicry and mischief-making . . . Unfortunately, observed oracle Brooks Atkinson, the script isn't as diverting as junior. . . Confirming the Philly Reviewers . . . Tidings from beyond Broadway were joyous for another new musical, "The Most Happy Fella," which is blessed with 35 songs from Frank Loesser's zither. . . The Boston Inspector, gifted it with golden notes. . . "Strip for Action" (another song-and-dance show) was appraised by Variety's Harold Bone (at New Haven) as "Moderately Satisfactory." The same weekly's Baltimore Sentinel scored "Little Glass Clock" as "an empty play without genuine humor" . . . Meaning, one presumes, "Clock" doesn't give a good time.

In the Wings: One of the insiders thought playright Tennessee Williams was getting the worst of it in the feud with Miss Bankhead. . . "Oh, well," yawned Alan Dale, "no one ever steals a show from Tullulah." . . . Fred Allen's passing in a line: Another Pearl for the Pearly Gates.

Storybook Bazaar Tops Club Goal

The Junior Woman's Club, through their Storybook Bazaar held Saturday, almost doubled the amount they had set as a tentative quota to be given to the Day Care Training Center, their major welfare project for the year.

The bazaar was held in the American Legion Auditorium, newly repaired from the flood damage with fifteen booths, each with a nursery rhyme of fairy-tale theme, selling everything from "shoes to ships to sealing wax, cabbages and kings."

In many of the booths, the attendants were in costume, and the children patronizing the show were delighted with the story-book characters. Adults were delighted with the bargains they were able to buy, and the Monroe County Band, playing from seven to nine, was an added attraction.

Despite the snowy morning, there was a steady stream of patrons throughout the day, with the biggest crowd coming at night. In addition to the patrons, practically all of the 120 members of the Junior Woman's Club spent some time at the bazaar, manning the booths or serving in other capacities.

Mrs. David Toms and Mrs. Joseph McCuskey, general co-chairmen, were very pleased with the success of the bazaar, the cooperation of the club members, and particularly with the enthusiasm of the workers who said they would be willing to serve in a similar affair next year.

Financial report of the show will be given at the meeting of the Junior Woman's Club on April 3.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Ordinarily this time of year, we'd be bubbling about babbling brooks breaking their winter silence and the haze around the bursting buds, but to be perfectly frank I sort of hate to look out the window these days.

I'm afraid to see more snow—or more ice skimming the puddles. It's safer to keep your mind on indoor sports, these days. And one odd bit of information that's been haunting me is from the Jolly Janes.

They had, among other things, hand-crocheted cups and saucers as nut-cups, which seems like going to a whole lot of trouble for the sake of a few "ohs" and "ahs." The story didn't make it quite clear whether the guests could take them home as favors or had to leave them for another day.

Reminds me of one poor hostess who borrowed a very cherished stork to serve as a centerpiece for the baby shower she was giving. The prospective mother was enchanted with it, and when she was packing up her gifts, packed the stork proudly on top and took it home.

Sort of an embarrassing position for the hostess who had to go and get it back again.

Booties For Babies Mount Up

Jerseyville, Ill. (AP) — Grandmother Minnie Hesley's New Year's resolution to crochet a pair of booties for every baby born in the Jersey Community Hospital is keeping her mighty busy.

During the first month of her project, presentations were made to 34 babies—23 boys and 11 girls.

It takes more than a blizzard to take the snap out of us! And we're proving the point by s-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g our 81st Anniversary Sale for three more value-conscious days—today, tomorrow, and Wednesday. During these additional days of grace, we will continue to offer selected merchandise in all of our departments at savings from 20 to 50%. It will actually pay you to come in and look around. Why don't you? . . . The store was a beehive on Saturday, and I should know, because I was one of the customers, grabbing for this and that in the hurly-burly tempo of pre-Easter buying. If I had my troubles with a son who has definite ideas about what he will and will not wear, there were other mothers with the same problem. Most of us didn't have time to watch what other people were doing, however — it was too hectic. There was a time when children submitted wordlessly to the decisions of salespeople and parent. That day has passed. "I will NOT wear it," say even the tiniest squirts, with undeniable emphasis. "It ticks me, and it's too hot. Anyway I won't have tan — I want gray." I sometimes feel that we parents have made ourselves a bed of thorns by trying to please our children and not repress them. By the same token, I feel that if our children are uninhibited enough to throw their weight around in public, we as parents should be uninhibited enough to spank them good right in the store's front window, if necessary. And I'll bet dollars to doughnuts a great many other parents will agree when they read these lines today. However, we'll all feel better after a few days of rest. I'm telling you, shopping with children can take the starch out of a woman's spine — the only consolation is that someday THEY will be suffering similar agonies as they shop with their own offspring. . . . Of course, in all fairness, I must give credit to the very wonderful little folks (my daughter among them) who say, "Oh, Mommie — everything's pretty. I'll try on anything you choose" . . . It amazes me to see the number of people shopping for electric appliances. Every year when our contest quota are announced, I suffer for the appliance staff. "How on earth can they ever make it?" I groan. But somehow they always do, and I admire their pluck. Blanche Mackey never seems to cringe regardless of the daily figures assigned her—"Why worry?" she blithely demands. "There are always buyers for Frigidaire and Easy appliances. They're good values anytime—and when our customers see what they can save during a sale, all have to do is LET THEM BUY." . . . One of our recently engaged girls here at Wyckoff's is wearing an emerald and diamond ring that has everyone emerald green with envy. It's as stunning as everyone's wishes for her happiness. . . . Now is the time to order personalized chocolate eggs for Easter eggs, Claire Coleman was back in the center aisle on Friday and Saturday giving the Easter bunny a hand with fancy frosting — and she'll return as the orders accumulate. Just place your orders early. A beautiful egg of generous size is only 79c and the name is applied free . . . People are charming, and in my job you meet a great many. Just the other day my office was visited by Mrs. Anita Deady of Saylorsburg, whose hobby is the creating of beautiful big cookie novelties that are just too pretty to eat. Mrs. Deady was carrying a folder of snapshots in color — showing her cookie replica of the Jess Haynes home on Dreher Avenue, and the seven-foot long Storyland train with its red caboose. She has also made a gingerbread house, complete with Hansel and Gretel; a hen house well stocked with all kinds of chickens; Easter eggs, and just about everything else that would delight a child. Needless to say, the children of her neighborhood love her, and her nieces and nephews rate her above everyone else except maybe Santa Claus. She is a real genius with her cookie designs and decorating. . . . Then, on Saturday, it was my pleasure to meet the very charming Mrs. Robert Schiebel of Orfield, wife of a Lutheran minister. You may have met her as "Dolly Madison." Mrs. Schiebel resembled a priceless miniature, in her beautiful colonial gown of rose and blue brocade, and her light-as-a-feather wig of silky white hair. While her position as hostess for Dolly Madison Ice Cream is only a part-time one, her loyalty to the company is enthusiastic and full time. You'll love this delightful ice cream too, first time you try it!

A. B. Wyckoff's Anniversary Sale Continued

HERE'S GOOD news for value-minded shoppers: A. B. Wyckoff is holding over its big 81st "Best Ever" Anniversary Sale.

The sale is being held over through this Wednesday due to consistently poor shopping weather we've experienced during the past few weeks.

According to a Wyckoff spokesman, "the best bargains of the season" will be available to shoppers during these final days of the sale. All previously advertised items remain on sale while quantities last.

Every department is featuring anniversary specials which carry price reductions from 20% to 50%. Wyckoff's also announced over the weekend they now have the agency for Dolly Madison ice cream, "America's outstanding quality ice cream."

Mrs. Victor Henning, Wyckoff Tea Room hostess, announced that Dolly Madison ice cream will be served exclusively in the Tea Room and the fountain. The economical half-gallon sizes are also being sold at the fountain.

White Helpful To Fluorescents

SINCE FLUORESCENT lamps are lower in brightness and much greater in area than incandescent lamps, the fixtures must be larger and must incorporate greater areas of reflecting surfaces. White enamel is the logical coating material to use for these surfaces. So that there will be no yellowing or discoloration of the paint film, these enamels are formulated with great care.

STEERING EFFORT is reduced by 80 per cent in the new Ford power steering unit, now installed as standard equipment at no additional cost on all Ford tricycle tractors. The linkage type unit, announced by the local Ford tractor and implement dealer, does not interfere with mounting implements on the tractor. It also is being offered as an accessory for installation on Ford tricycle tractors already in use. See it demonstrated at Raymond Price, Inc., Mountainhome.

Year-Round Comfort Possible With New Furnace Designs

IS THAT FURNACE in your basement showing signs of collapse? If you're mindful of both your comfort and the future value of your home, you'll be wise to consider replacing the heating plant with one of the fascinating new "air conditioning design" furnaces on the market this year.

That's the advice offered home owners by Lawton Huffman, local Carrier distributor, Craig Meadow.

Adequate cold weather performance he points out, is naturally important. And added to this is the fact that buying the wrong kind of heating unit now can make it more expensive in time to come when you join the growing ranks of those converting to all-season climate control.

Summertime Cooling
Simple low-cost addition of summertime cooling and dehumidifying was a major design objective of the new line of Winter Weathermaker forced warm air furnaces just introduced by Carrier, Mr. Huffman said.

These special "furnaces with a future" are now on display at the local firm's showrooms.

Vertical models of the Winter Weathermaker are available with a finished casing on top which serves as a section of duct. In adapting to year-round home air conditioning, the dealer simply lifts a removable front cover, slips in a cooling and dehumidifying coil, and connects it to an air-cooled condensing unit located outside.

In these models, the home owner can save an average of $150 when conversion to complete air conditioning takes place in the typical house, compared to the cost of adapting a standard furnace.

A single Weathermaker control center regulates both summer and winter temperatures will also be provided as standard equipment with the new Carrier furnace. This is an innovation for the heating industry, Mr. Huffman said.

Small, Compact
The new heating unit is one of the smallest and most compact furnaces ever built. Because of its "vest pocket" size, it installs easily and unobtrusively in alcove, closet, basement or utility room at no sacrifice of floor space.

The Winter Weathermaker is color-blended in soft blue and gray to harmonize with surrounding decor, Mr. Huffman revealed. A complete line of oil and gas-fired "up-flow," "counterflow" and "horizontal" models is available for all types of homes, at capacities ranging from 75,000 to 231,000 Btu's of heat per hour.

Carrier's new forced air furnaces, together with the company's line of year-round, conversion and summer air conditioners, constitute the most complete and versatile array of central residential climate control equipment in the industry, Mr. Huffman said.

Year-Round Weathermakers combine heating and cooling in a single package. They are supplied in oil and gas-fired models and in sizes from 2 to 7½ tons. Both water and air-cooled refrigeration is available.

Raymond Price Displaying New Models

RAYMOND PRICE, Inc., Ford tractor and implement dealer in Mountainhome announces that all new Ford tricycle tractors now on display in his dealership feature power steering as standard equipment, at no additional cost.

"Steering effort is reduced by 80 per cent," Mr. Price said. "The new Ford linkage type power steering unit makes for easier control of the tractor in rough fields or in precision row crop work, and materially reduces driver fatigue."

Mr. Price said the unit is installed at the factory on all new Ford 700 and 900 series tricycle tractors, and is available as an accessory for installation on Ford tricycle tractors already in use.

Hydraulic Muscles
"The new Ford power steering unit applies hydraulic 'muscles' to the conventional Ford tricycle tractor steering gear, and absorbs bumps and shocks before they can reach the driver," Mr. Price explained.

The conventional steering linkage is replaced with a special link which connects to the hydraulic cylinder, providing the power assist.

The entire power steering unit is mounted on the right side of the engine compartment, with the hydraulic cylinder connected by a special bracket to the tractor side rail. The unit does not interfere with the mounting of implements, and is easily accessible for servicing.

The unit consists of a rotor type pump and reservoir assembly with an integral combined flow control and relief valve, a double acting cylinder and control valve assembly, double crankshaft pulley and connecting hoses and linkage.

Ideas For Decorating

MR. AND MRS. Ross Davis and Walter Davis came up from Georgia to visit Mr. and Mrs. Elam Gray. Mrs. Davis is a sister to Mr. Gray. Last summer Mr. Gray's parents came up from the south for their first visit here, just in time to be greeted by the flood. This group of relatives from the south ran into the blizzard.

Police Chief Fred Decker had a birthday Wednesday. It will be celebrated Sunday by a family dinner party at the home of his son and daughter-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Decker of Stroudsburg.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buzzard, a dinner was given in honor of Mr. Buzzard's birthday. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Buzzard, and his brother and sister-in-law and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buzzard and William, were present.

The Senior Youth Fellowship has entire charge of the Easter sunrise service which will be held at 5:30 a.m. Easter at the former Reenleigh on the Heights. Miss Marianne Drake will accompany the singing with the trombone.

The Junior Youth Fellowship will not meet for the next two Sunday nights because of Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday. The last meeting of the senior group Monday night at the home of their adult adviser, Mrs. Mildred Buzzard, tabled handwork to hold a party in honor of Miss Eleanor Kulp and Miss Camille Buzzard, who have 16th birthdays this week. After games, the young folks found birthday cupcakes on the table with their decorations spelling out the birthday names. Each honored girl blew out the candles on her name group. A large cardboard robin, painted by Mrs. Buzzard, marked Miss Buzzard's place for her first-day-of-spring birthday; a bunny marked the place of Miss Kulp.

Mrs. Florence Davis, of Stroudsburg, came to Water Gap to spend Thursday night; but the heavy snow kept her here until Tuesday morning. She was a guest of Mrs. H. Rotzel.

Dr. and Mrs. Bennett Strait, who returned from Fallington, Pa., where they had visited their son-in-law and daughter Sunday afternoon, were glad to find snow not 21 inches deep in this section and road plows busily at work. Farther down cars were being abandoned in drifts of snow and they found the going very slow and difficult; taking twice the time usually required.

By Whitney Martin

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Probably the happiest baseball player down here this spring is a young fellow named William Walker Cooper, who will do a spot of catching for the St. Louis Cardinals this year if they don't decide to farm him out for another year of experience.

"He's young if you're 50 and old if you're old, as he was 41 last Jan. 8, and has played practically a round robin in the National League. He's been with every club except Brooklyn, making him a rival of that famed Marco Polo of the sport, Bobo Newsom.

Cooper Back Home

Cooper is happy because he's back home, you might say; back to the club of his glory years. What his thoughts are as he walks into the low-slung clubhouse at Al Lang Field is anybody's guess, but he must more than seldom sit in front of his locker and be practically overcome by nostalgia.

He and Mort made up one of the few brother batteries in the majors, a combination which had no little to do with the Cardinals' three straight pennants and two war years.

Mort Retired

Mort has long since left the baseball scene. In fact, all Walker's teammates of that era except Stan Musial have departed, at least from the St. Louis club, although Red Schoendienst was there in 1945.

But the big receiver carries on, still ramrod straight and with a deliberate, majestic bearing that somehow instills confidence in kids who were still in rompers when he was breaking into pro ball back in 1935.

He has no illusions about his years or his ability to match youth in endurance and speed. He hopes he will be able to catch at least 60 games, and that his experience will enable him to help the younger players. He wants to learn them his experience, as Yogi Berra would say.

Not Very Talkative

Never a very talkative fellow, particularly when the subject was a guy named Walker Cooper, he is much more affable now that he is back with his first love. But he still would rather talk about his fellow workers.

Right now he is giving Hal Smith a big boost. Smith is an eager fellow who was up for a look-see a year ago, then sent to Houston where he had a fine year. Smith has it made, as they say. He'll stick, and along with Bill Sarni will give the club adequate protection behind the plate, with Cooper filling in at opportune times.

"He's all right," Cooper says with no trace of envy as he talks of the hustling, personable Smith. "He's really got a great arm."

Good Defensively

Which he has, as other Cardinals have mentioned, and which we have observed ourselves. Manager Freddie Hutchinson has been working him pretty steadily this spring, and we have yet to see him make a bad throw, or pull an obvious skull behind the plate. Smith's hitting still is a ?, and in one game we saw him fan three times. But we also saw him hit behind a runner going from first to second with all the skill of a Paul Waner. We thought it was just a lucky accident.

"That was no accident," Hutchinson said. "That's what he was trying to do."

The kid is going to be good, and that venerable carry-over from baseball's stone age, Walker Cooper, is doing his bit to help him along.

Retains Bantam Title

MEXICO CITY, March 25 (U-P)—Raul (Raton) Macias of Mexico retained his NBA world bantamweight crown today by knocking out Leo Espinosa of the Philippines in the tenth round of their scheduled 15-round bout before a crowd of 50,000. Macias weighed 117½ pounds, Espinosa 115½.

What Caused Loch's Flop, British Cry

AINTREE, England, March 25 (U-P)—Britain was in mourning today because of the mystery of "what happened to the Queen Mother's horse?"

Devon Loch, Queen Mother Elizabeth's entry, failed to win the Grand National Steeplechase yesterday when the race was 99 and 9-10th per cent finished.

A stranger might gather the defeat was as catastrophic as the British army's loss at Omdurman.

Collapse

Devon Loch led the race until 40 yards from the finish. Then suddenly, and without clear reason, he slipped, floundered and collapsed. E. S. B. shot past to win the 110th running of the world's longest, most spectacular and toughest horse race.

Gentle Moyn was second and Royal Tan third. Twenty-nine horses started the race, but only nine finished.

"Grand Gnash-ional" shouted the headline on one agonized paper. "I can't understand it, weeps Royal Jockey" in another headline and "No wonder he wept" said another.

Top Conservation

Meanwhile, the subject of the great collapse took first place in conversation.

The Briton apparently less horrified than anyone else was the Queen Mother herself.

All the gracious loser said after the race was, "A life time's ambition gone in a flash. But, that's racing."

Tests were being made on Devon Loch today to try to determine just what made him flop after running four miles and 816 yards of the four mile, 856 yard race. He had taken each of the 30 jumps in fine style and led E. S. B. by three lengths when all was lost.

Various Causes

Until something definite is learned from the tests—if anything ever is determined—expert opinions on the cause range from a sudden cramp, a slight and painful muscle strain on the last jump, a slip on the turf and just plain exhaustion.

High Schools Get Okay To Use New Lane

CHICAGO, March 25 (U-P)—Six rule changes including adoption of the 12-foot free throw lane for high schools were approved today by the National Basketball Committee, rules-making body for high schools and colleges.

The 12-foot lane, successfully used by colleges this last season, will be put into use by high schools in the 1957-58 season. The committee said the new lane will not be used in 1956-57 in order to give institutions time to revise their courts.

Schools wishing to use the 12-foot lane next season may do so only if the system is put into effect on a state-wide basis.

5 Other Revisions

Five other revisions and discussion on numerous other proposals were undertaken by the committee which ended its two-day meeting today.

Other revisions were:
1. Two defensive players will assume positions under the basket when a free throw is being attempted. The old rule had men under the basket on a home-and-visiting team basis.

2. No player may have his foot into the free throw lane when a free throw is attempted until the ball hits the cylinder or backboard. Previously a player could leap into the lane so long as his foot did not touch the floor until the ball had hit the cylinder or backboard.

Wider Toe Mark

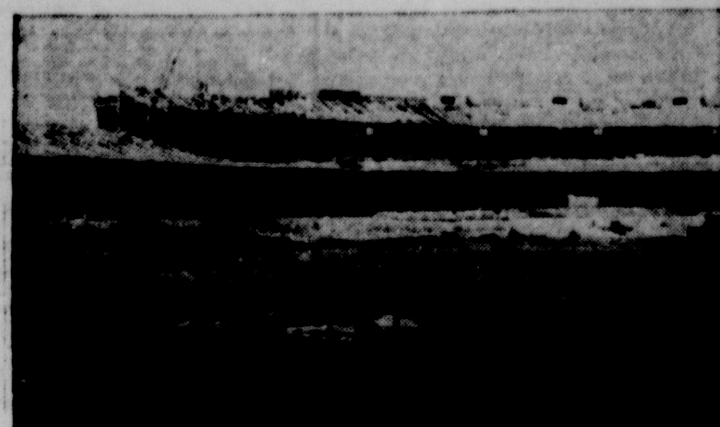

3. The free throw line, where a player toes the mark when attempting a free throw, will be two inches wide rather than one inch. Reasons given were to make all lines on a court uniform and to make the boundaries of the three-second rule easier to distinguish.

4. Restriction on the jump ball so that no player may have his foot within the circle until the ball is tapped.

5. No offensive player may reach above the cylinder to guide an attempted shot into the basket. Previously, no defensive player could reach above or touch the rim on an attempted shot.

Ren Jackson, White Sox first baseman, and Frank Sullivan, Red Sox pitcher, are the tallest players in the American League. Both are 6-6½.

Dickinson Is Miami Victor After Early Leaders Falter

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Rock-steady Gardner Dickinson Jr. won the $15,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament today with a 6-under-par 69 as first Billy Maxwell and then Dow Finsterwald blew sky-high and finished in a tie for second place.

For the second tournament in a row Maxwell went into the final round leading the field only to blow his chances on the late holes. Finsterwald shot a record 29 on the front nine today to take the lead at that point—but he too blew up on the back nine.

Winning Score

Dickinson's winning score and his first major professional victory was 64-72-67-69—272. Maxwell had 70-66-69-69—273.

The 28-year-old Dickinson, who studied golf under the little master of the game, Ben Hogan started the final round in second place, five strokes behind Maxwell.

Both Maxwell, 28-year-old from 20-year-old from Bedford Heights, Ohio, had a chance to tie Dickinson on the final hole. But both missed their birdie putts. Finsterwald's putt was about 15 feet and Maxwell's about five.

Top money was $2,400. Maxwell and Finsterwald collected $1,600 each.

Middlecoff Hits 69

Cary Middlecoff of Dallas shot a 69 and Bob Imman of Detroit a 70 to tie for fourth at 275. Jimmy Demaret of Klamath Lake, N.Y., had a 72 for 276.

Par for the 6,577-yard Bay Shore course is 36-36-72, and stiff winds today made it play much tougher than during the first three rounds. The wind was in the golfers' face on all par five holes and only 11 broke par and nine others matched it.

Putter Fails

Maxwell's putter brought his downfall here just as it did at St. Petersburg last Sunday. He took three putts each on three holes.

He lost the St. Petersburg Open in the final round by missing short putts on the last two holes.

Other leaders and winnings included:
Mike Souchak, Grossinger's, N. Y., 68-69-68-73—278 $513.33
Lionel Hebert, Erie, Pa., 70-67-69-73—279 $340
Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla., 69-70-72—280 $245.

Needles' Next Race Slated For Kentucky

MIAMI, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Needles, speediest thoroughbred ever produced in Florida, will make his next appearance in the Kentucky Derby in May, his owners said today.

His sensational victory in yesterday's Florida Derby, after a convincing triumph in last month's Flamingo Stakes, stamped Needles as the Kentucky Derby favorite and that will be his next stop, said trainer Hugh Fontaine.

"He came out of the race in good shape and we'll keep him here a couple of weeks and then ship to Kentucky," Fontaine said.

Knew All Along

"Sure, we knew all along we had a top horse," the 60-year-old trainer beamed. Owners Bonnie Heath and Jackson Dudley agreed.

Fontaine, one of the most colorful characters in racing, was a World War I flier with Capt. Edie Rickenbacker. His last good horse was Ladysman, 22 years ago, and there were many lean years until he came up with Needles.

"Well, we showed them, didn't we," Fontaine chuckled after Needles put on one of his most sensational stretch runs to win the $145,000 mile and a furlong Florida Derby against the toughest competition of his career.

Boots Bankroll
For his victory, achieved in track record time of 1:48 3/5, over 13 other promising 3-year-olds yesterday Needles earned $96,200 to boost his bankroll to $338,605, including $208,800 this winter.

Prix Winner Shuns Lauds For Hurt 'Foe'

SEBRING, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Juan Fangio, the world champion sports car driver from Argentina, wasn't celebrating today over his record-smashing victory yesterday in the 12-hour International Grand Prix of Endurance.

He was too worried about the condition of a close friend, Carlos Menditeguy, who was seriously injured when his car struck a barrier and overturned during yesterday's big race.

Fangio got up early this morning and went immediately to a Sebring hospital where Menditeguy is in serious condition from a head injury.

Very Pleased

The daring South American said he was "very pleased" that his Italian Ferrari scored a clean-cut victory over a field of 60 sports cars from the factories of England, Italy, Germany, France and the United States.

"I would have enjoyed it much more," Fangio said through an interpreter, "except for the accident of my friend."

Fangio and Menditeguy both are from Buenos Aires. Menditeguy is considered the second best race driver in Argentina behind Fangio.

Sebring's speed records all were broken as Fangio and his co-driver, Eugenio Castellotti, the Italian champion, won this foremost American sports car race by a 10-mile margin.

It was a spectacular triumph for the Ferrari factory of Modena, Italy, in the competition for the 1956 world sports car championship. The Sebring race is one of only seven in the world in which points can be earned toward this title.

Ferrari finished one-two in the grueling marathon over a 5.2 mile course around the runways of an abandoned wartime air force base. The second place Ferrari was driven by Luigi Musso of Italy and Harry Schell of France.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 25 (U-P)—Fort Wayne kept its title hopes alive today with a 107 to 84 victory over St. Louis, the first win against two losses for the Pistons in three semi-final National Basketball Assn. playoff titles with the Hawks.

Nebel's Market
Re-Forms For '56

NEBEL'S Market, an entry in the Monroe County Softball League, reorganized for the 1956 season at the home of Ray Silver, West Main St., Stroudsburg, yesterday.

The club, which will carry 15 players, discussed plans for the campaign, league by-laws and team insurance rates.

Wilhelm Nebel, team sponsor, outlined other plans for the season. Club officials also announced that the squad will hold a practice session at Clearview School grounds, Sunday afternoon, April 8.

The only boxer to win titles in two successive Olympics was H. W. Mallin of Great Britain. He won the middleweight championship in the 1920 and 1924 Games.

MIAMI, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Bill Skowron knocked in three runs, two with a triple and one on an infield grounder, as the New York Yankees defeated the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-0 before 12,562 fans today.

Tommy Byrne held the Dodgers to two hits as he blanked them for six innings. Young Ralph Terry limited them to two hits over the last three.

Billy Loes matched Byrne's scoreless job until the fifth when Byrne beat out a bunt, Hank Bauer and Yogi Berra singled. Skowron tripled and Billy Martin doubled. Don Bessent suffered a recurrence of a groin injury in his first spring training effort in the eighth and had to be removed from the game. The Yankees picked up their final run, without a hit, against Ralph Mauriello in the ninth.

Pee Wee Reese made his spring debut for the Dodgers at short and had only one fielding chance. He failed to get a hit but walked once.

Hammer's HR Margin
CLEARWATER, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Granny Hammer boomed a home run over the left field fence today to break a scoreless deadlock in the 10th inning and give the Philadelphia Phillies a 1-0 exhibition verdict over the Boston Red Sox.

Hammer's smash, served up by loser George Susce, stretched the veteran infielder's grapefruit league hitting streak to 11 straight games.

Willard Nixon pitched six innings of hitless ball for Boston but Saul Rogovin and winner Murrey Dickson were almost as effective for the Phils, permitting only one Bostonian to get as far as second base.

Cards Streak At 6
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25 (U-P)—Rip Repulski's two-run single with the bases loaded snapped a seventh-inning tie today and led the St. Louis Cardinals to their sixth straight victory, a 7-4 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Repulski, who earlier had driven in another run, collected his decisive hit off southpaw Jack McMahon, third of four Pirate hurlers after St. Louis filled the bases on a hit batsman, Joe Frazier's double and an intentional walk.

Pittsburgh bunched five of their 10 hits off Harvey Haddix in the fourth when all four runs scored. Hal Smith, rookie catcher, led St. Louis' 12-hit attack with three singles.

Palmerton Back To Normal After Title Bid Goes Awry

PALMERTON—Palmerton High and its horde of victory-snubbed followers returned to normal ways today following the Bombers' unsuccessful bid to gain the PIAA State Class A basketball championship at Philadelphia Saturday night.

Playing far below the par of its other tournament outings, Palmerton fell by the wayside to a good Farrell High five by a 57-45 score before a jammed packed house at the University of Pennsylvania Palestra.

LED BY THE double-barrel shooting duo of Don Jones and Mike Canone, Farrell was practically the master throughout. With Jones working the boards in gale-like fashion and Canone hitting on set shots with phenomenal ease, the Western quintet held sway from the opening whistle to the final shot.

With the exception of the third quarter when the Bombers outscored Farrell 15-11, the newly crowned state kings threw up an all-court press that had the Lehigh Valley champs forcing most of their shots at the basket.

Indicate Difference
The quarter scores truly indicate the difference in the two clubs. Palmerton trailed 9-4 in the opening stanza and 26-20 at the intermission.

Palmerton closed the gap to 37-35 in the third when Farrell elected to ease up on its all-court maneuver. But in the fourth with the press again evident the Westerners put on the steam and pulled away.

Jones, a 6-5 pivotman, led the game's scorers with 29 markers. Trailing for Farrell was little Canone with 11.

Lafayette Opens Season Thursday

EASTON — With the Lafayette college baseball team scheduled to open a Southern trip Thursday, the Maroon tossers have been handicapped by bad weather in their preparation for the trip.

Coach Charley Gelbert, beginning his 11th season as Lafayette baseball coach, has had little opportunity to look over his squad as cold weather prevented outdoor work.

Maroon battery candidates have been working indoors most of the time since drills began at the beginning of the month. But little outdoor work has been done by them as well as the rest of the squad.

Lafayette is scheduled to open the season Thursday with the Quantico Marines at Quantico, Va., and also will play the Marines the following day. Other games on the trip are with Georgetown at Washington next Saturday; Navy at Annapolis, Md., on April 2, and Delaware at Newark, Del., on April 3. Yale is scheduled here on April for the opening home game.

Pitcher Bob Lemon of the Cleveland Indians was quite effective as a pinch hitter in 1955. He made four hits in 10 appearances for a .400 average.

Butler Makes Request Of Democrats

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Chairman Paul M. Butler of the Democratic National Committee is urging Democratic leaders in Congress to "bolster our legislative record" for the sake of the party's candidates in the November election.

An aide to Butler said today the party chairman had written Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker Rayburn, both of Texas, that action is needed lest Democratic candidates "be in a very weak position in the area of natural resources."

Butler urged passage of specific legislation in the field of federal power development. He said his letter, dated March 16, reflected the wishes of the national committee.

Rayburn said he had not seen the Butler letter, copies of which were sent to some other congressional Democrats. Johnson could not be reached for comment.

Philadelphia Girl Named Best Dressed

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 25 (AP)—A Philadelphia girl in a mink stole took the top honors today as the best dressed woman on this resort's famed boardwalk in a "pre-Easter parade."

Delecia Treblow was one of 12 women picked by three judges who toured the boardwalk in rolling chairs in the annual Palm Sunday event.

The 12 in turn selected Miss Treblow as the best dressed among them. She wore a suit of deep tulle material, a large brimmed hat of various shades of lavender, and black accessories.

Others

The 11 other winners, each of whom received orchid corsages, were Mrs. Daniel C. Hilferly, of Philadelphia; Mrs. James Coyne, daughter of Mrs. Hilferly; Mrs. William Jajko, Philadelphia; Mrs. McKim Smith, Atlantic City; Miss Mrs. Arlene Olson, Philadelphia; Mrs. Mark Waldo, of Atlantic City; Mrs. Harry Walsh, Philadelphia; Mrs. Robert E. Fear, Hackensack; Mrs. Albert M. Burnley, Ventnor; and Mrs. Marlene Shapiro, Philadelphia.

About 25,000 persons turned out for the parade, well short of record attendance.

Quigley Blasts House Plan

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Rep. Quigley (D-Pa.) today labeled "ridiculous" a plan to bring housewives to Washington at government expense to tell what sort of house they'd like to have.

Quigley, who is married and the father of four daughters, said in a statement:

"Why housing authorities . . . would be interested in learning what the women of this country want in a house is beyond my comprehension."

His statement was directed at a proposal by Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole to conduct a "Woman's Congress on Housing."

The session would be attended by women selected from among those responding to a recent invitation from Cole to write him letters telling how the modern home can be improved.

Women making the trip would be mothers "in the middle-income bracket." Uncle Sam would pay transportation costs and a $12-a-day allowance, the same as is paid to government officials on out-of-town trips. No date has been set for the proposed conference.

Quigley lambasted Cole's plan as a "contest gimmick" from which "only the box top is missing," and a sample of "Madison Avenue huckstering devices."

Westinghouse, Union Sign New Contract

PITTSBURGH, March 25 (AP)—Westinghouse Electric Corp. and the United Electrical Workers Union (Ind.) today reached agreement on a five-year contract providing a minimum 25-cent-an-hour wage boost during the life of the contract. It ended a strike of some 3,200 employees in eight plants.

The agreement is subject to ratification by union locals. The UE strike of 6,000 workers at the big South Philadelphia plant is continuing, the union said.

The dispute at the South Philadelphia plant, where the company has proposed changing a wage-payment plan, will be turned over to local union officials and plant management for discussion tomorrow.

Union Claims

The union claims the company plan would mean an average 50-cent-an-hour pay reduction for workers there.

The UE national settlement is similar to an agreement the company and AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers reached last Tuesday, ending a 156-day strike at 30 other plants.

The UE settlement provides for wage increases of from 5 to 17 cents an hour for the first year of the agreement and from 5 to 12 cents an hour for each year of the following four years. Hourly rates under the old contract averaged $2.10.

The contract runs through Oct. 15, 1960. The national strike by the UE was in its 152nd day.

The UE pact remains the same on arbitration—and grievance procedure—the union has the right to strike over grievances. Arbitration is used only by mutual agreement.

Maties said the agreement contains no provisions for setting production standards for day workers or salaried workers such as the IUE pact. He said the company offered a 1500-word proposal, which is included in the IUE pact, but the union rejected it.

Provision

The settlement also provides that all employees will return to work without disciplinary action for any activities during the strike.

The company said recall of the employees will be worked out at the plant level and some plants may start production before ratification. The agreement sets a deadline of April 2 for local union ratification. James J. Maties, UE director of organization, said all of the locals will vote Tuesday on ratification and added that it is unlikely they will report to work before ratification.

Maties said he is recommending acceptance of the agreement.

The agreement also provides for a cost-of-living adjustment of one-cent-an-hour increase for each half-point rise in the cost-of-living index of the Department of Labor.

The agreement can be reopened in 1958 for employment security discussion and in 1957 on economic issues.

The union has the right to strike over the employment security issue if an agreement is not reached.

Discussion

Like the IUE pact, the union locals have a right to discuss wages once a year and to strike if agreement is not reached.

The pension provides for the company to contribute $2.25 a month for each year of service for unlimited years toward a worker's retirement. Under the old plan, the company contributed $2.15 a month for each year of service up to 30 years.

The company said the economic clauses in the settlement are identical with those in the agreement reached with the IUE last week.

The 6,000 employees at the South Philadelphia plant have been on strike since Oct. 14.

Today's agreement covers UE employees at these plants: Nuttall works in Pittsburgh, Derry (Pa.), Jersey City, N.J., Bridgeport, Conn., Detroit, Chicago, Emeryville, Calif., Seattle, Wash.

Extension Of Taxes

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Another year's extension of business and excise taxes at their present rates was voted unanimously today by the Senate Finance Committee.

Restrictions On Size

KENTVILLE, N.S., March 25 (AP)—Nova Scotia's fruit exporters sold about 240,000 bushels of Annapolis Valley apples in Britain this season and 2,500 bushels in Germany. They had hoped to sell about a half million bushels in those countries, but complained that buyers' restrictions on size and variety cut down sales.

New York City Attorney Warns Of Latest Mob Rule

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—U.S. Atty. Paul Williams said today that New York City is on the threshold of another era of Capone-type mob rule in the huge trucking and garment industries.

He said a special federal grand jury will be impaneled next Thursday to investigate the situation.

The problem has been raised a number of times in recent days.

Last week Martin T. Lacey charged in a federal court suit that gangsters and racketeers were trying to out him from the City Teamsters Joint Council. John J. O'Rourke won an election to the job, but the matter has been frozen until a hearing April 3 on Lacey's complaint.

May Held Without Bail

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Robert May, 20, of Long Island, N.Y., was held without bail today on a homicide charge in the fatal shooting of a 18-year-old youth last Friday night.

The six-foot-two blond defendant displayed no emotion at the arraignment as Magistrate Reuben Levy set April 6 for a hearing. May was represented by Rocco J. Scalone.

Admittance

In a short affidavit, Detective Morris Reiter alleged that May shot and killed Joseph Lomuscio as the latter sat in an automobile in Manhattan.

Police said a dispute over money led to the killing and the wounding of another youth, Ethan Eldon, 17, at the same time.

May was convicted on June 25, 1952, in Lancaster, Pa., of robbery and sent to the industrial school at Camp Hill, Pa., for an indeterminate sentence.
